

NEW FLATWEAVE RUGS

A Rum Fellow introduce new handwoven flatweave rugs with more designs and colourways coming. The rugs can also be customised in colours, size, and technique. Goodweave certified.

Flat weave rugs, also known as dhurries or kelims, are woven on a loom, created by interlocking warp and weft threads to form a non-pile rug. Flatweave rugs are very durable and easy to care for.

The Ocular and Periscope rug play with perspective and optical illusion weaving familiar narratives into fresh new designs. The processes of patchwork and mending infuse these designs with geometric patterns which are softened and brought to life with rich playful colour palettes.

ABOUT

A Rum Fellow makes exceptional fabrics and rugs vibrant with pattern and colour, enhanced and intensified by an array of textures. The feel is modern and joyful, and the quality is palpable.

Whether bought from the roll, or commissioned, everything A Rum Fellow produces needs to be seen and touched to appreciate its individuality. Look at the underside of the brocades and you find the loops of knotted threads and feel an immediate tactile link with the fingers that worked them.

Founders Dylan O'Shea and Caroline Lindsay have an unconventional approach, and this is what informs their unique range of products. Their shared passion for textiles and travel has fueled a joint ambition to create products of lasting value that enhance the lives of their makers as well as their consumers. With the help of Fair Trade weaving co-operatives, they build relationships with small groups of weavers, finding those with the skills required to produce work of the finish and consistency demanded by the interior design trade.

NEW London studio and showroom opening soon.
