VELVET CUSHIONS

"I first discovered the beautiful photographic images of Cristina Coral on Instagram, and I was immediately inspired by the magical quality of her thought-provoking imagery combined with her sense of colour. Her work juxtaposes fashion and interiors. With a slightly surreal twist and a love of matching her clothing to her locations I was hooked to her collection. Having also lived in Florence I was also drawn to the settings of her work and her inimitable sense of style and inspiring locations." Susi Bellamy

"Cristina was born in Trieste with a great history and nostalgic present. It is where she grew up, and currently lives. She is drawn to the themes of everyday life for her inspiration, but memories also inform her work. She was brought up in an artistic environment and her father, Giampaolo was a famous composer. When she was young, she often went to the theatre and opera with him where she found herself escaping into a place of oblivion as she immersed herself in the expression of the performance."

"Cristina was inspired enough by my designs to add them into her settings for her next body of work. She chose the bird and owl pillow sized velvet cushions which were then sent to Italy. Cristina carefully curated each design to be included in some of her settings.

"Every scene depicted was studied to make her cushions stand out while keeping harmony in the picture. Just like a painting. Colour plays a fundamental role in our subconscious but especially in the final composition."
